

June 2011 at BFI Southbank

Jeff Bridges / Kino Part 2 / Ray Davies on stage

Summer will arrive this June with a wide range of seasons, previews and events at BFI Southbank. A two-part tribute to Jeff Bridges will launch with an Extended Run of Cutter's Way (1981), while the second part of KINO, Russian Film Pioneers (1909 – 1957), will take audiences to the 1930s and the advent of words and music under the rise of Stalin. Films made following the fall of a dictator may be viewed in Good Morning Freedom! – Spanish Cinema After Franco, when a new breed of directors enjoyed the liberation of filmmaking without censors. This season will also include an Extended Run of Cría cuervos (Raise Ravens, 1975), made during the summer that Franco lay on his deathbed. The Missing Believed Wiped Special: UnLOCKed The Library of Congress Discoveries (Part One) unveils the remarkable rediscovery, made last year, of over 100 hours' worth of lost British TV drama that had been imported by the United States and which includes rare appearances from world class British talent including Maggie Smith, Sean Connery and Judi Dench.

Exclusive offers for members will feature screenings of François Ozon's Potiche (2011), starring Catherine Deneuve and Gérard Depardieu, plus a preview of Phase Eight (2011), David Hare's first film as a writer and director for over twenty years. Ray Davies is the curator of this year's Meltdown festival, and he will appear in conversation with Julian Temple on 18 June, followed by a Flipside double-bill of films, starring The Kinks' frontman: The Long-Distance Piano Player (Play for Today, BBC, 1970) and Starmaker (Late Night Drama, ITV, 1974). Another musical extravaganza comes courtesy of a BUG Special: Moby, as his new album Destroyed is celebrated with a big-screen retrospective of the artist's output.

Seasons

Renowned film critic Pauline Kael once wrote of Jeff Bridges that he 'may be the most natural and least self-conscious screen actor who ever lived'. This tribute season addresses an extraordinary career spanning six decades and over 60 films which have earned him five Oscar nominations, including his most recent performance in Joel and Ethan Coen's True Grit (2010), and, somewhat tardily, the Academy Award for Best Actor in Crazy Heart (2009). An Extended Run of the rarely screened classic Cutters Way (1981) provides a centrepiece to the programme alongside the continuation of the recently revived The Last Picture Show (1971). This month, part one will include films from Bridges' early career including Fat City (1972), the western Bad Company (1972), Michael Cimino's Thunderbolt and Lightfoot (1974) and Tron (1982), while part two will include Terry Gilliam's The Fisher King (1991) and The Big Lebowski (1998).

In KINO, Russian Film Pioneers (1909 – 1957), the concluding part of the first instalment of Russian and Soviet cinema, the emergence of sound in the 1930s is presented against the backdrop of communism. A new national cinema flourished with mass appeal - musicals being most popular. Dunayevsky's jazz inflected music for Happy Guys (aka Jazz Comedy Veselyye rebyata, 1934) and the 'Blue Globe' song in Kozintsev and Trauberg's The Youth of Maxim (Yunost Maksima, 1935) launched the soundtrack of the decade, creating a new modern popular culture that Russia had never known before. As war loomed, Soviet filmmakers were encouraged to delve into Russian history which would result in Eisenstein's final masterpiece, Ivan the Terrible Parts 1 and 2 (Ivan Grozny, 1944, 1945/46). Next month will bring part one of KOSMOS, a two-month study of sci-fi against the backdrop of Yuri Gagarin's momentous expedition into space.

The death of Franco in 1976, Spain's dictator of almost 40 years, gave a green light to an alternative, adventurous and eclectic culture – or counter-culture – in the country. Spain entered a period with an unsteady socio-political atmosphere on one side and a burst of cultural liberation and experimentation on the other – without the restrictions of the old censors. Breaking with the previous climate of repression, they approached subjects that daren't be mentioned before: sex, drugs, homosexuality, politics...All with an innovative, free spirit that brought together filmmakers, professional and amateur actors, designers, musicians. Good Morning Freedom! – Spanish Cinema After Franco celebrates this artistic freedom granted to many filmmakers, such as Juan Estelrich with The Anchorite (El anacoreta, 1977), Pedro Almodovar with Pepi, Luci, Bom... (Pepi, Luci, Bom y otras chicas del monton, 1980), Labyrinth of Passion (Laberinto de pasiones, 1982) and Dark Habits (Entre tinieblas, 1984) and Victor Erice with South (El Sur, 1983), amongst others. Cría cuervos (Raise Ravens, 1975) stars Geraldine Chaplin and Ana Torrent and provides the perfect complement to this season.

America's NETRC (National Educational Television and Radio Centre) was created in 1952 primarily to facilitate the distribution of programmes to various Educational Television channels across the States. During its lifetime NET imported much UK programming, primarily from the BBC but also from a number of ITV franchises. In 2007 an independent researcher delved into the archive at Library of Congress, which held the NET collection, and yielded a wealth of titles that form Missing Believed Wiped Special: UnLOCKed The Library of Congress Discoveries (Part One). Many familiar faces may be seen in plays for television, including a very young Sean Connery alongside Dorothy Tutin, Leonard Rossiter and Dad's Army star John Le Mesurier.

Across BFI Southbank:

The Disney 50, a very special partnership where for the first time audiences can enjoy every Disney animated feature on the big screen every weekend throughout 2011, features this month The Jungle Book (1967), The Aristocats (1970), Robin Hood (1973) and The Many Adventures of Winnie the Pooh (1977). This month's Family Funday promises a 3D preview of Kung Fu Panda 2 (2011) and in a Kung Fu Panda furious five workshop kids can think about what special skills their own defenders of peace may possess, with chances to win fabulous prizes.

The Studio offers a last chance to see the stunning BFI restoration of The Great White Silence (1924), Herbert Ponting's official footage of the ill-fated expedition to the Antarctic led by Captain Scott, the stunning Ballast (2007) by Lance Hammer and Kelly Reichardt's trailblazing feature Meek's Cutoff (2010), starring Michelle Williams.

Pottiche

France 2010 Dir François Ozon With Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu 103min. EST

Courtesy of Optimum Releasing

Suzanne is, to her family, a trophy housewife (un potiche) who dotes on her grumpy husband Robert, who's running her family's umbrella company to ruin. Soon enough the factory workers go on strike and Robert has a heart attack, leaving Suzanne to run things alongside her former love, the town mayor Maurice. She's a figure of fun to the workers at first, though it soon becomes clear that no-one wants Robert back in charge. Deneuve is wonderful in this charming and strong comic role.

David Hare's first film as writer and director for over 20 years is also the first British film to address the special challenges of intelligence practice in the new century. Johnny Worricker (Nighy) is a long-serving M15 officer. But the death of his boss (Gambon) and a seemingly chance encounter with his next-door neighbour (Weisz), a political activist who seems too good to be true, force him to walk first out of his job and then out of his identity in search of the truth. Followed by a Q&A with David Hare.

Preview: The First Grader

UK-Kenya 2010 Dir Justin Chadwick With Naomie Harris 98min Courtesy of Soda Pictures.

Kenya, 2003. 84-year-old Maruge uses a government initiative for free primary schooling to claim the education he's always craved. However, when he presents himself at the school gates, only head teacher Jane is sympathetic to his cause: her colleagues are unenthusiastic and her superiors appalled. Shooting in the stunning Kenyan Rift Valley, with a real school and pupils, gives the film an authentic sense of place and community. A change of direction for Chadwick, known for such period dramas as Bleak House and The Other Boleyn Girl, as well as last month's TV preview, Stolen.

The Flipside: Ray Davies on TV Introduced by Ray Davies

A rare chance to see two terrific musical dramas showcasing the genius of legendary Kinks songsmith Ray Davies.

The Long-Distance Piano Player

Play for Today BBC 1970 Dir Philip Saville. With Lois Daine, James Hazeldine. 80min

Many hit singles down the line, Ray made his acting debut in this Alan Sharp-scripted BBC drama as a musician attempting to set a world record for non-stop piano playing. While his wife begs him to stop, his manager urges him to continue. Bittersweet and thought-provoking, the play features some excellent alternate versions of Kinks songs and an unreleased Davies composition, never heard elsewhere.

+ Starmaker

Late Night Drama. ITV 1974. Dir Peter Plummer. With June Ritchie. 37min

As the 1970s progressed the Kinks grew ever more theatrical, with Ray writing a string of concept albums and stage shows for the group. Starmaker, one of the most ambitious and successful of these, saw Ray centre stage as The Star, an aloof rock god, who, searching for inspiration, submerges himself in the dreary day-to-day existence of Norman – a boring accountant. But, over the course of eight underrated Kinks tracks, he discovers that their lives are inextricably linked.

Passport to Cinema: L'Histoire du 'Look'

Or what is style, and where does it come from? Some films are said to be stylish, while others are accused of favouring style over content. It has been said that style is content, while a French critic praised William Wyler's 'style without a style'. In an extended three-month season, co-programmed by the National Film and Television School, style will be put under the microscope.

Part One: The Stylistic Starting Points / Part Two: Style from the Machine: Studio Directors

To mark the 40th anniversary of the founding of The NFTS, some screenings will be preceded by animated shorts made by NFTS graduates.

Pather Panchali

India 1958 Dir Satyajit Ray With Kanu Bannerjee, Karuna Bannerjee, Subir Bannerjee 123min EST U

Ray's debut film was based on a 1929 Indian novel. Made on a minuscule budget, with a largely amateur cast and an inexperienced crew, this study of a Brahmin family in rural India at the turn of the century is a masterpiece of simplicity and grace. In the words of Lindsay Anderson, 'A beautiful picture, completely fresh and personal. [Ray's camera] reaches forward into life, exploring and exposing, with reverence and wonder.'

Thu 2 June 20:40 NFT2, Sat 4 June 18:20 NFT2, Mon 6 June 18:10 NFT2 Introduced by Mamoun Hassan

Shadows

USA 1959. Dir John Cassavetes. With Ben Carruthers, Lelia Goldoni, Hugh Hurd 82min 12A

Cassavetes' debut as director looks at the fractured lives of three siblings in New York, caught within the racial divide. One brother is a struggling jazz singer forced to perform music he regards as demeaning, the other a saxophonist too alienated to find work, while their sister seeks her identity on the fringes of literary and artistic life. Cassavetes' uncompromising emphasis on character and his independence from commercial pressure make Shadows a milestone in American cinema.

Sat 4 June 16:15 NFT1, Sun 5 June 20:30 NFT3, Tue 7 June 18:10 NFT2 Introduced by Dominic Pow

Love Me Tonight

USA 1932 Dir Rouben Mamoulian With Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Myrna Loy 104min U

Rouben Mamoulian's dazzling musical fairy tale is a sophisticated exercise in wit and style. Love Me Tonight's feathery, light-opera story about a romance between a tailor and a princess is the springboard for a stream of visual and sonic invention that makes it unique among film musicals.

Mamoulian's direction endows Love Me Tonight with the key articles of its hero Maurice's manifesto of 'style, charm and love'.

Sat 11 June 16:00 NFT2, Mon 13 June 18:10 NFT2*, Tue 14 June 20:40 NFT2 *Introduced by Geoff Andrew

The Scarlet Empress

USA 1934 Dir Josef von Sternberg With Marlene Dietrich, John Lodge, C Aubrey Smith 104min 12A
Sternberg was at odds with the studio system through his assertion of the primacy of his own style. The Scarlet Empress is the penultimate film that he made with Dietrich for Paramount. The story of the Prussian princess who rises to become Catherine the Great of Russia, the film is a baroque, expressionist study in manipulation and perverse sexuality from one of cinema's master stylists.

Sun 12 June 16:00 NFT2, Tue 14 June 18:10 NFT2*, Sat 18 June 18:20 NFT2* Introduced by Philip Kemp

A Midsummer Night's Dream

USA 1935 Dir Max Reinhardt & William Dieterle With James Cagney, Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Mickey Rooney 133min U

The great German theatre director Reinhardt's only American film (co-directed with Dieterle) is a brilliant cinematic imagining of one of Shakespeare's best-loved plays. With its all-star cast of major Hollywood actors and comedians (notably Cagney as Bottom and Rooney as a feral Puck), and a ravishing score by Erich Wolfgang Korngold adapted from Mendelssohn, this version of A Midsummer Night's Dream is a strange and enchanting extravaganza.

Fri 10 June 20:40 NFT2, Sun 19 June 16:15 NFT1, Mon 20 June 18:10 NFT2 Introduced by Neil Brand

Black Narcissus

UK 1947 Dir Michael Powell & Emeric Pressburger With Deborah Kerr, Kathleen Byron 97min U

Powell and Pressburger's adaptation of Rumer Godden's novel about a group of Anglican nuns marooned in the alien environment of a convent in the Himalayas was shot in the studio rather than on location. Black Narcissus is a ravishing account of the conflict between flesh and the spirit, graced by Jack Cardiff's luminous cinematography and a performance of simmering eroticism by Kathleen Byron.

Sat 18 June 20:40 NFT2, Thu 23 June 20:40 NFT2, Mon 27 June 18:10 NFT2 Introduced by Laura Mulvey

Essential Experiments: Strange Forces: Perception, Observation and Presence

A selection of works exploring film's potential to interrogate notions of spatial perception, observation and interaction. Film (1965, Dir Alan Schneider. With Buster Keaton) is a commentary on Bishop Berkeley's philosophical theory that 'to be is to be perceived', a dialogue between voyeurism and self-perception. The Black Tower (1987, Dir John Smith) is a masterpiece of British avant-garde cinema: a humorous exploration of paranoia through a blend of cinematic conventions. Contrasting with Schneider and Samuel Beckett's dialogue-free Film, The Black Tower is narrated using a voice-over that establishes a curious relationship between soundtrack and image. Finally, three works by Norman Maclaren explore notions of the living, anthropomorphic possibilities of objects and spaces, along with their potentially calamitous effects on human psychology and interaction: Pas de deux (1968), Neighbours (1952) and Opening Speech (1960).

With Introduction Thu 9 June 20:30 NFT3

Kurt Kren Programme

Controversial Kren was concerned with both form and content and used mathematical strategies to document his war-damaged Austria, a concert by cult Krautrockers Amon Düül II and performances by the notoriously extreme collective, the Vienna Aktionists. Illustrating the development of his often confrontational practice, this programme features all the above and includes 3:60 Trees in August (1960), 6/64: Mama und Papa – Materialaktion Otto Muehl (1964), The Eating Drinking Shitting Pissing Film (1967), and more. Introduced by artist Anna Thew

Thu 30 June 20:40 NFT2

May 2011 saw the birth centenary of screen legend Vincent Price. To mark the occasion, we've invited downtempo electronica duo Animat to perform their live soundtrack to one of Price's most overlooked films. Price is on form as the survivor of a devastating plague, apparently alone until night falls and victims rise to form a hellish undead army thirsting for blood! Their latest album Imagining Ghosts is released in June.

Kino: Lecture by Oksana Bulgakowa: The Soviet Film Factory of Gestures

The Revolution's bid to create a wholly 'New Man', through transforming social norms and traditions, saw a radical change in the gestural codes of society. Soviet films shaped and documented the new body language, which saw surprising juxtapositions and reversals of acceptable body language between private space and the public sphere. We welcome film historian and scholar Prof Oksana Bulgakowa (Director of the Institute for Film Studies at the University of Mainz) to explore the metamorphoses of body language in Russian and Soviet society, through close analysis of documentary and fiction films of the 1920s and 1930s.

From The Archive: Projecting the Archive: She... Who Would Be Pope + Q&A with John Briley

UK 1972/2009 Dir Michael Anderson With Maximilian Schell, Olivia de Havilland, Trevor Howard, Franco Nero 132min 15

In 1972's Pope Joan, Liv Ullman starred as the legendary head of the Roman Catholic Church who supposedly reigned for two years in the ninth century. Written by Oscar-winner John Briley (Gandhi, Cry Freedom) the film originally included a second storyline about a 20th-century woman who thinks she is Pope Joan reincarnated. These sequences were filmed but remained unseen until the producers re-inserted them in 2009. In the process Pope Joan is reinterpreted as She... Who Would Be Pope, a rich melange of 60s counterculture, dark-age bawdiness, evangelical delusions, ruthless kings and hypocritical monks. Introduced by Dylan Cave (Curator, BFI National Archive).

Wed 22 June 20:45 NFT1 We look forward to welcoming John Briley for a Q&A after the screening

Capital Tales: Swinging Before the Sixties: Three Portraits of Post-war London

1956 saw the first of six programmes of 'Free Cinema' documentaries at the National Film Theatre. With their virtuoso cinematography and lyricism often redolent of Humphrey Jennings, this selection demonstrates how the filmmakers reimagined the landscape of post-war London. Bursting with a raw energy, Momma Don't Allow (Dir Karel Reisz & Tony Richardson, 21min) captures a clash of new and old school youth cultures at the Wood Green Night Club. In Every Day Except Christmas (Dir Lindsay Anderson, 40min) a day in the life of Covent Garden flower, fruit and vegetable market sympathetically highlights the workers behind the bouquets. Piccadilly Circus has never looked as down-at-heel as in Nice Time (Dir Claude Goretta & Alain Tanner, 17min). Here are the hopes and disappointments of people searching for a good Saturday night out – hot dogs, porno magazines, sailors, prostitutes, all illuminated in the flashing neon.

Projecting the Archive: Caravan + Jean Kent intro

UK 1946 Dir Arthur Crabtree. With Stewart Granger, Anne Crawford, Jean Kent. 80min. PG
Gainsborough kept up its quota of plunging necklines and unbridled melodrama with this return to the work of Eleanor Smith (The Man in Grey). Granger plays an aspiring writer betrothed to Crawford but the evil Sir Francis (a deliciously unwholesome Price) is determined to come between them. Jean Kent plays the luscious gypsy who falls for Granger, saving him from the baronet's murderous intentions. Ballet dancer Robert Helpmann gives an unexpectedly fine comic turn as Price's inept sidekick.

We are delighted to welcome Jean Kent to introduce the screening on the occasion of her 90th birthday

USA 1967. Dir Wolfgang Reitherman. With voices of Phil Harris, George Sanders 78min U

The Indian jungle is the setting for Kipling's tale featuring Mowgli, an abandoned boy raised by wolves, who befriends a bear named Baloo and a panther named Bagheera. On his travels, he encounters an unpredictable Orang-utan King, a cunning tiger and a mesmerising snake. As the final film that Walt Disney himself worked on, The Jungle Book is a fitting tribute to him and his legacy and deserves its place as one of the most popular animated films of all time. Plus Goliath II (1960, 15min).

The Aristocats

USA 1970. Dir Wolfgang Reitherman. With voices of Phil Harris, Eva Gabor 78min U

A classy Parisian cat named Duchess is kidnapped by evil butler Edgar, keen on an inheritance from her well-off owner Adelaide Bonfamile. An encounter with street-smart alley-cat Thomas O'Malley changes her life forever as he introduces her and her three kittens to his jazz friends, some military dogs and a mouse names Roquefort. The jazz theme is translated into the animation as much as it the music and even without Disney's own hand to guide the Studio, another animated classic was born.

Plus Music Land (1935, 10min).

It's Terry Thomas as Sir Hiss, Prince John's snake side-kick who steals the show in this nod to the English legend of the noble who robs the rich to feed the poor as they await the return of the true King from the Crusades overseas. Christopher Robin's 'silly old bear' appeared in three featurettes, here collected in a tale of a honey tree, a blustery day and Tigger too. Remaining faithful to the spirit of AA Milne's books, it follows Pooh, Piglet and friends (including Disney creation Gopher) as they meet Heffalumps and Woozles, celebrate Eeyore's birthday and find more honey than you could shake a pooh-stick at. If you've seen the recent Winnie the Pooh film, here's a chance to see where it all started. Plus Lend a Paw (1941, 8min).
